Town of Redcliff

General Information

TOWN OF REDCLIFF

"Greenhouse Capital of the Prairies"

Named after the "red cliffs" of the South Saskatchewan River just below the town site, Redcliff's first development was a coal mine just west of the present community about 1883. By 1911 the town had become an industrial centre of the west boasting over 20 industries, either in operation, being built or planned. These included a shoe factory, glove factory, glass factory, steel rolling mill, foundries, brick plants, knitting factory, a truck manufacturing centre and a cigar maker. The foundations of some of the plants are still visible as a reminder of the era when Redcliff was the "Smokeless Pittsburgh of the West".
